

Kiel University seeks to attract more qualified women for professorships.

The Institute of Classics / Classical Archaeology of the Christian-Albrechts-University in Kiel (CAU), Germany, invites applications for a

Professorship in Urban Archaeology (W2, 100 %, permanent)

Job description

The successful candidate is expected to have a main research focus in the field of urban archaeology for the period of Classical antiquity – the urban cultures of Greece and Rome – which is to be proven by the completion of a scientific monograph (e. g. PhD, habilitation). An expertise in at least one of the following fields is requested:

- method and theory of archaeological urban research
- comparative analysis of ancient cities (regional and diachronic)
- archaeological exploration of ancient cities (fieldwork)
- analysis of urban architecture (buildings research)

The focus lies on the relation between the cultural and natural environment and social space in cities and their hinterland. The successful candidate will assume a central role in the interlinking of existing urban research projects at CAU. She/He will participate actively in the university's research focus "Societal, Environmental and Cultural Change", and especially in the Johanna Mestorf Academy, the CRC TransformationsDimensionen and the Graduate School Human Development in Landscapes. Furthermore, the conception and organisation of scientific conferences and the acquisition of third-party funding are part of the requirement profile. In teaching, the successful candidate is expected to enhance CAU's focus on urban archaeology through the creation of an internationally visible teaching programme. Active participation in the interdisciplinary research network of humanities, natural and life sciences is also expected, as is participation in academic self-administration.

Requirements

Requirements for the position are an excellent PhD in the field of Classical Archaeology and proof of further scientific achievement through a junior professorship, habilitation (post-doctoral thesis) in Classical Archaeology or the completion of a second scientific monograph in the field (published or completed manuscript). A substantial and internationally visible publication record concerning diverse aspects of urban archaeology is also required, along with evidence of success in external funding applications. Experience with collaborative or international research programmes is particularly desirable. Good command of the German and/or English language, alternatively the willingness to learn the German language, is an essential prerequisite.

The position is opened with respect to Art. § 61 and § 63, Section 1 of the Higher Education Act of the State of Schleswig-Holstein. For additional information, please refer to the website www.berufungen.uni-kiel.de.

The Christian-Albrechts-University wishes to increase the number of female academics in faculty positions and encourages applications from qualified women. Female applicants will be treated with priority if their qualifications and achievements are equal to those of male applicants.

Applications from academics with disabilities will be treated with priority in case of equal qualifications. We explicitly encourage candidates with a migration background to apply. Candidates are not required to submit a photograph with their application and are requested not to do so.

Job application

Applications in German or English including CV, certificates of academic degrees, list of publications, information on teaching experience, PDF-copies of the three most important publications or completed manuscript, a list of grants awarded over the recent 5 years, and short statements on previous and future research interests together with private and academic postal and e-mail addresses and telephone numbers must be submitted by October 15th, 2017 to the Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Humanities, Christian-Albrechts-University, 24098 Kiel, Germany. Please send your application in a single PDF-file via e-mail to bewerbungen@philfak.uni-kiel.de
